Trinity's Table last Sunday

We had a quiet evening as we enjoyed the first day after the clocks "fell back." We served 135 meals of Manwich sandwiches (thanks to a generous donor for the buns!), mixed vegetables, apple slices, potato chips, desserts, and drinks. Thanks to Charleston Bread, Sugar Pie Bakery, our "fruit donor," and all of the volunteers who helped today!

Special thanks to a very observant volunteer -- she's in middle school and helps us almost every week. She noticed a guest in distress and alerted an adult. We called 911 as our guest suffered from a seizure, and he was checked out quickly and thoroughly by the professionals.

Are we spiritually bankrupt? Have we traveled down the rabbit hole of good works and social concerns so far that we have abandoned our primary call to relationship with God and our fellow human beings? Or do they reflect that relationship? Can we pray? Do we really think it makes a difference?

I know it does make a difference, but these questions should haunt us. As we enter the new church year, perhaps we need to look to ways to grow and enhance our spiritual beings. Prayer is a good start.

God's peace, Pastor R.

Message from Pastor Randy:

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

Last week I attended the monthly CARLA (Charleston Area Religious Leaders Association) meeting. Trinity has hosted the meeting and I try to go most months. We represent a diverse group of religious leaders – Protestants and Catholics, Orthodox, Muslims and Jews. We just get together to visit with one another, get to know one another and support one another. We do not take up any causes and rarely, if ever, have an agenda. The meeting times and locations are scheduled months in advance. Last week's meeting was at B'nai Jacob, hosted by Rabbi Urecki.

Needless to say, the conversation turned to the Squirrel Hill attack and the brokenness and hatred that attack illustrates. We consoled one another, talked of security and plans for Saturday's Sabbath service. I mentioned an article I had read in this month's Living Lutheran. The author opined that much of our brokenness stems from the breakdown of spirituality and our various traditions abandonment of spirituality as our primary goal. He opined: "Only when we care for our spiritual well-being will we be equipped to translate those experiences into courageous acts of compassion, justice and peacemaking, offering them to a world crying out for healing." I talked about a prayerful relationship with God and that how such a relationship precludes such hate. One of the other pastors commented that he suggested on his Facebook page that everyone take a minute of prayer for each of the victims. One of the comments he received was: "A lot of good that will do!"
